On Thursday, February 25, 2021 at about 3:30 AM, Lincoln City Police responded to a report that a vehicle parked at the North Shell Station, located at 4031 NW Hwy 101, had just been stolen. Upon arriving at the location, officers learned from the vehicle owner that she had stopped at the Shell station's convenience store to purchase some items. Officers attempted to initiate a traffic stop and the vehicle initially pulled into a nearby driveway with officers stopping behind it. The driver of the vehicle then pulled forward and then reversed, almost backing into the police vehicle. The driver then quickly accelerated forward driving through a yard before crashing the vehicle over a steep embankment in an attempt to get away. With the vehicle stuck partly in the road and partly on the embankment, the driver jumped out and started running away on foot with the officer following closely behind. The driver ran for about 50 feet before stopping as the officer was commanding him to do so. The driver, and only occupant of the vehicle, was taken into custody without further incident and identified as Andrew L. Barnett of Portland, Oregon. Barnett was initially checked at the scene by medical personnel from Pac West Ambulance and North Lincoln Fire & Rescue before being transported to Samaritan North Lincoln Hospital after he complained of having chest pains and a history of heart issues. Once released from the hospital, Barnett was transported to the Lincoln County Jail and lodged on the following charges: Unlawful Use of a Motor Vehicle, Felony Elude in a Motor Vehicle, Misdemeanor Elude on Foot, Reckless Driving, Fail to Perform the Duties of a Driver Involved in a Crash and Theft I of a Companion Animal. SEATTLE — A Coast Guard aircrew medevaced a woman from a ship Saturday afternoon, Jan. 30, experiencing breathing difficulty and temporary unconsciousness off the Washington coast near Neah Bay. Watchstanders at Coast Guard Sector Puget Sound command center received a call at 11:30 a.m. from the ship's health insurance provider stating a 65-year-old woman aboard the vessel needed medical attention. At the time, the 710-foot container ship, Matson Kodiak, was transiting westbound in the Strait of Juan de Fuca. The command center diverted an MH-65 Dolphin helicopter crew from Air Station Port Angeles who was already airborne near Seattle. At 1 p.m., the rescue crew arrived on scene, deployed the rescue swimmer to assist, and safely hoisted the woman. The aircrew then proceeded en route to Olympic Medical Center in Port Angeles. She was transferred to higher medical care at 1:50 p.m. The patient's current medical condition is unknown.

members were reportedly donning cold water immersion survival suits when communication with the Coast Guard was lost. At 7:40 a.m., the MH-60 Jayhawk aircrew arrived on scene and passed a radio to the vessel crew to reestablish communication. The vessel was observed to be drifting toward hazardous breaking surf near shore, and the vessel crew was instructed to enter the water, one-at-a-time, to be recovered by the rescue swimmer. At approximately 9:15 a.m., all three persons were reported to be successfully recovered and aboard the helicopter en route to Westport Airport. They arrived at 9:30 a.m. in stable condition and declined medical assistance. "The crew's fast action to notify our watchstanders and put on those survival suits saved their lives," said Lt. Cdm. Jason Joll, pilot and flight commander. "They had those suits on and were ready to go when we arrived on scene." The Terry F subsequently capsized and broke apart in the surf, and the vessel's emergency position indicating radio beacon was recovered by U.S. Coast Guard Auxiliaries in the vicinity of Willapa Bay inlet.

USCG & Commercial Crab Season

USCG release - ASTORIA, Ore. — Coast Guard rescue crews from Station Cape Disappointment responded to three distress calls during the season opener of the Washington State commercial crab season this past Saturday, Feb 13. The station, located in Ilwaco, Wash., is at the mouth of the Columbia River near several marinas that are home to numerous commercial crab and fishing vessels. Station Cape Disappointment, along with Station Grays Harbor, launched 47-foot Motor Lifeboat [MLB] rescue crews at 7:30 a.m. for a fishing vessel taking on water near Willapa Bay. A Coast Guard helicopter eventually hoisted three individuals and their dog off their capsized vessel. The crew was then diverted at 9:15 a.m., south in the vicinity of Gearhart, Ore., to assist another fishing vessel with an injured crewmember. The individual sustained a head laceration and foot injury after their vessel was struck by a wave. Once on scene, the rescue crew aboard the MLB transferred a Coast Guard first responder to the vessel in 16 to 18-foot seas. The rescue crew then determined it was safer for the injured person and Coast Guard crewmember to remain aboard the vessel and transit the Columbia River bar with the MLB crew as an escort. At 1:45 p.m., the 62-foot fishing vessel was moored in Ilwaco and the patient was safely transferred to awaiting EMS. Simultaneously, a separate MLB rescue crew was assisting the crew of a 66-foot fishing vessel off the coast of Long Beach, Wash. The initial distress call came in at 9:30 a.m., stating a vessel with five people aboard was disabled and drifting to shore, dragging its anchor. In 16 to 18-foot seas, the MLB crew placed the vessel in tow, deanchored the vessel, and began the transit south.

With the disabled vessel being above optimal towing capabilities and with the increased risk of crossing the bar, the MLB crew from the previous rescue joined to assist with the tow. The new MLB crew put the vessel in an alongside tow while the other MLB continued a stern tow. At times, the ebb tide was strong enough that at several points, all three vessels were unable to make any headway. The disabled vessel was taken to a pier in Warrenton, Ore., and safely docked around 9:30 p.m. "Coast Guard rescue crews around the country stand the watch 24/7/365," said Lt. Jessica Shafer, commanding officer, Station Cape Disappointment. "They do so much more than that, too. The same crews underway are the same crews that maintain the boats and facilities. The evening before, the crews were up at 1:30 a.m. A strong storm had knocked the power out around the local area. The crab fleet had just begun to depart for sea so the crewmembers immediately validated that the Columbia River Bar range lights and the lighthouse were operating under generator properly. It is truly impressive to witness that sort of dedication." Shafer continued, "...the actions of the Coast Guard small boat crews throughout the day were phenomenal, but so were the actions of the crews we assisted. When our boat arrived on scene with the distressed vessel in Long Beach, the fishing vessel's crew had already donned their survival equipment. They knew what attachment points would be the strongest to use, and they were efficient at bringing our assistance lines over and attaching them. Those precious few moments can make all the difference." In total, the Station Cape Disappointment crews spent nearly 28 hours underway in seas up to 20-feet and helped save $638,595 of property.

Vessel Fire, Tacoma

SEATTLE — The Coast Guard and State of Washington partner agencies are responding to an active fire Thursday afternoon, Feb. 18 on board a commercial fishing vessel moored in Tacoma. The fire broke out shortly before midnight aboard the 233-foot 'Aleutian Falcon' at pier 25 in the Port of Tacoma. As of 2 p.m. Thursday, the fire continues to burn. Tacoma Fire Department reported the fire and said the vessel began to list after using water to battle the flames. Crews fought the fire both along the pier and from three fire boats. Coast Guard watchstanders at Sector Puget Sound launched a response boatcrew from Station Seattle at midnight to enforce an isolation zone for marine traffic around the stricken vessel. At 1 a.m., Coast Guard pollution responders arrived on scene. The crew of Coast Guard Cutter Wahoo, an 87-foot Patrol Boat, arrived at 2:30 a.m. to relieve the Seattle boatcrew. A commercial tug moved a neighboring vessel to avoid damage from the fire. A spill response company was contracted and arrived on scene with four vessels around 5 a.m. The Hylebos and Blair Waterways were closed for several hours, but reopened at 1:30 p.m. Absorbent boom has been placed near the vessel to mitigate pollution. A 1,500-yard 'no-wake' zone is now in place for all marine traffic transiting the area. A unified command has been established consisting of the Tacoma Fire Department, the Coast Guard, Environmental Protection Agency and the Washington Department of Ecology.

Android devices, is a modern way for the Coast Guard to assist the every-day mariner. The app was developed as a tool that merges an easy-to-use interface with common cellphone operating systems, offering users a central application for commonly searched boating information. Location settings in the app can be customized to provide real-time weather information from the National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration weather buoys. Mariners can also report navigational hazards or possible pollution incidents to local Coast Guard responders. Additionally, the app can act as a form of communication between the mariner and the U.S. Coast Guard. Designed to store vessel registration and contact information, user profiles can be vital sources of information to search and rescue teams during maritime distress situations. A critical feature of the application is the bright red "Emergency Assistance" icon on the home screen. This icon will connect mariners in distress with the nearest Coast Guard unit or 911 emergency service while also providing responders with a real-time GPS location. While the Coast Guard has many reasons for promoting the application, friends and family members of mariners can also benefit from its use. This application provides a unique avenue to file a float plan with designated contacts. These plans can provide information on future voyages to friends and family. Float plans can be critical in emergency situations where facts need to be accurately remembered and provided to search and rescue crews. While the Coast Guard does not actively monitor float plans, many mariners can find comfort in providing voyage information to family members who can then provide detailed inform to search and rescue crews if the vessel doesn't return when planned. The Coast Guard encourages mariners to do appropriate research before getting underway and hopes this application will provide a central platform for commonly requested information. DINT Arrest Douglas Co.

In the evening hours of Tuesday, February 2nd, 2021, the Douglas Interagency Narcotics Team (DINT) arrested two individuals involved in local and interstate drug trafficking crimes. DINT detectives and deputies from the Douglas County Sheriff's Office initiated a traffic stop on a vehicle on Coos Bay Wagon Road near Reston Road, in rural Douglas County. A search of the vehicle revealed approximately 2 pounds of cocaine and a loaded firearm. DINT followed up a short time later with a search warrant for a residence in the 1900 block of Dairy Loop Road. A search of that residence revealed a large amount of illegal controlled substances and other drug paraphernalia. In total, detectives seized approximately 13 pounds of suspected cocaine and approximately 4 pounds of suspected methamphetamine. Detectives arrested 59 year old David Zoeter of Lookingglass, Oregon, and 46 year old Eric Gonzalez-Velez of Desert Hot Springs, California. Zoeter has been charged with Unlawful Possession of Methamphetamine and Unlawful Delivery of Methamphetamine. Gonzalez-Velez has been charged with Unlawful Possession of Cocaine, and Unlawful Delivery of Cocaine. Both have been lodged in the Douglas County Jail.

The investigation is continuing and more charges are sure to follow.

Douglas Co. Cold Case

DOUGLAS COUNTY, Ore. – Detectives with the Douglas County Sheriff's Office are seeking information related to an open missing person case from 1995. "It has been 26 years since he disappeared. Someone out there has information; and we just need them to come forward to help us bring a sense of peace to his family," Detective Kevin Dodds remarked about the case. On February 12, 1995, Curtis Dale Hill was reported missing to the Douglas County Sheriff's Office. An extensive investigation was conducted into Hill's disappearance; however, he has never been located and the circumstances of his disappearance remain limited. "The Sheriff's Office never closes a missing person case where the person has not been located. The cases remain open and are periodically reviewed and efforts to glean additional information are made," Sgt. Brad O'Dell said. In 2009, the case was re-opened by the Cold Case Squad; a former division of the Sheriff's Office made up of retired law enforcement officers who volunteered their time reviewing cases. At that time, the investigators re-interviewed friends and family but were unable to turn up any viable leads. Work on the case was again conducted in 2011 and 2012 by the Detectives Division. The Sheriff's Office is again combing over the investigative files and seeking assistance from the public. Anyone with information on the whereabouts of Curtis Dale Hill or the circumstances surrounding his disappearance is asked to call the DCSO Detectives Tip Line at (541) 957-2099 or send an email to dcsopio@co.douglas.or.us referencing Case #95-0845.

Crater Lake National Park, announced a month stay at a residential reentry center. The court also ordered that Wood be banned for life from Crater Lake National Park, be restricted from hunting for the duration of his probation, and pay $42,500 in restitution to the National Park Service. "Our nation's environmental laws are in place to protect vulnerable wildlife populations and ensure that future generations will have the opportunity to enjoy these animals as we do today. Mr. Wood preyed on elk and deer who were unaccustomed to being hunted and thus uniquely vulnerable to poaching," said U.S. Attorney Williams. "Beyond the depravity of his crimes, Mr. Wood further engaged his minor son in his illegal acts and bragged about his criminal behavior to others. Thanks to the hard work of federal and state investigators, justice has been served and Mr. Wood has been permanently banned from Crater Lake." "Our public lands are special places for both people and wildlife," said James Ashburner, Special Agent in Charge, U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service. "The defendant's blatant disregard for the law caused great harm to the elk herd in the park. This joint case demonstrates the resolve of National Park Service, Oregon State Police, and the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service in protecting our nation's natural resources. A special thank you goes out to the Service's National Wildlife Forensics Lab for their incredible work on this case, as well as to the U.S. Attorney's Office for the District of Oregon for placing an emphasis on environmental crimes that impact the natural world we all enjoy."

According to court documents, in July 2014, the National Park Service (NPS), U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service (FWS), and Oregon State Police (OSP) began a multi-year investigation into Wood's illegal hunting activities based on reports that he was poaching wildlife in Crater Lake National Park. At least two sources stated that Wood had killed several deer and elk on the west side of the park after baiting them into meadow with rock salt. OSP received further reports that Wood was illegally poaching wildlife at night. On August 31, 2014, an OSP trooper observed Wood and his son leaving the national park after dark. When the trooper approached him, Wood hurried toward his vehicle and acted as if he were trying to hide something. After speaking with Wood, the trooper located a loaded AR-15 semi-automatic rifle outfitted with night optics beneath his truck. Wood initially claimed the rifle was for bear hunting, but after the trooper pointed out that the rifle was not lawfully equipped to hunt any wildlife, Wood then claimed it was for personal protection. The trooper cited Wood for being a felon in possession of a firearm and seized the rifle. Wood was convicted in state court of the charge and placed on probation.
